Course Three

Applying the Law of Attraction

In the second course of Effortless Success, you created a breakthrough goal. Like a rock thrown into a still pond, a breakthrough goal creates ripples that spread through all areas of your life. In this advanced course, you will have a chance to explore the implications of your breakthrough goal for all four major dimensions of your life. Each of the four sessions in this course is devoted to one dimension:

- This first session focuses on success. That includes your money, job, profession or career, and the material possessions you wish to have in your life.
- The second session focuses on your health. That includes your body—physical fitness, energy, and stress levels—and your emotional, mental, and spiritual health.
- The third session focuses on your relationships—family, friends, and professional relationships.
- The fourth session focuses on your personal growth—emotional, mental, and spiritual growth, as well as the development of your skills, insights, and wisdom.

In these four sessions you will have the opportunity to develop, integrate, and harmonize all of your goals, examining the overall ecology of your life to make sure all of your values, characteristics, and talents are enhanced by your life-transforming breakthrough goal.

To gain the greatest benefit from your Effortless Success program, be sure to listen to the supporting audio recordings that come with Course Three. Listen to the Paraliminal Receiving several times during the first week of study, then once a week thereafter. For extra inspiration and guidance on living the Law of Attraction, listen to the Secrets of Effortless Success Question and Answer CD. Use the Fast Finish recording for a quick review—or preview—of everything in Course Three.

Session 1: Effortless Success

In this session you are introduced to five key points about success—the dimension related to money, work, contribution, status, and material accumulation:

- Success is defined as any progress you make in achieving a goal you choose.
- Some major myths about success might prevent you from realizing the joy, vitality, and abundance ready to emerge in your life.
- Challenges inevitably arise as you move toward your breakthrough goal.
- The many steps on the way to success, including so-called failures, can be seen as part of your learning.
- Accumulating objects represents a limited idea of success.

You also hear about the importance of holding onto possibility through inspiring stories from Jack, Paul, Lisa Nichols, and Rev. Michael Beckwith. Even when the odds of achieving a goal or dream seem absolutely impossible, just maintaining an awareness of what is even remotely possible allows room for manifestation and creates an unstoppable momentum.

Using these ideas as a backdrop, you can now complete the following exercises in this session:

- Define Your Breakthrough Goal
- Foresee Disruptions
- Turn Disruptions Into Enhancements
- Choose Your Actions

These exercises will help you address issues that arise related to the success dimension of your life as you pursue your breakthrough goal.

Choose Your Actions

List five specific actions you will take to support the success dimension as you move toward your breakthrough goal. These can be actions you take to turn disruptions into enhancements, or they can be other actions in the success dimension directed toward achieving your breakthrough goal. For example, if you want money to hire a trainer so you can achieve your breakthrough goal of running a marathon, then write the actions you will take to get that money.

- 1) _____

- 2) _____

- 3) _____

- 4) _____

- 5) _____

As you write down your “Rule of Five” list of actions to take each day, you can add any of the above success-related actions to the list.

Summary

Achieving Effortless Success

Remember your intimacy with the universe

The Law of Attraction is aligned with the recognition that all things are interrelated. You are on intimate terms with the rest of the universe.

Do not expect smooth sailing

Achieving effortless success will not necessarily be all smooth sailing. People who believe this myth more easily give up on their vision when they encounter roadblocks and fears as they set course toward their life-transforming goal. Remain on purpose and you will meet those challenges with much greater ease.

Have a bias toward learning

Learn from people who have come before you. Those who have achieved results similar to what you desire can offer great advice for pursuing your goals and help you avoid any pitfalls that may lie ahead.

Expand your focus beyond material success

The success dimension encompasses the more material aspects of life: financial success; career, job, or profession; creating and building a business; acquiring material possessions; gaining status, reputation, and power; and having an impact on the broader world. The latter might be called your contribution or legacy. If you focus only on the pursuit of material wealth, without regard to your deeper purpose and its impact on others, you will inevitably throw your life out of harmony. When you align your breakthrough goal with your true purpose, you will realize growth, integration, and harmony in all areas of your life.

“When we try to pick out anything by itself, we find that it’s hitched to everything else in the universe.”

John Muir

Session 2: Effortless Health

This session of Applying the Law of Attraction addresses the effects of a breakthrough goal on the health dimension. On the recording the initial dialogue between Jack and Paul explores five common issues related to effortless health and the Law of Attraction:

- Health is not defined as just being pain-, illness-, or disease-free, but rather as having a dynamic state of wellness.
- Major myths can stand in the way of achieving effortless health.
- Common fears, considerations, or roadblocks may appear when you begin to replace unhealthy habits with a healthier way of living.
- You are 100 percent responsible for your own health.
- When you consciously recognize death as a natural phenomenon, you literally choose to show up in life more fully as who you are.

The guidance contained in the dialogue is reinforced with inspiring stories from Jack, Paul, Lisa, and Michael.

Using all these ideas as a backdrop, you can complete the following exercises in this session:

- Define Your Breakthrough Goal
- Foresee Disruptions
- Turn Disruptions Into Enhancements
- Choose Your Actions

These exercises will help you address issues that arise in the health dimension of your life as you pursue your breakthrough goal.

Summary

Achieving Effortless Health

Reach for high-level wellness

Your health encompasses a wide spectrum that includes your physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. It is more than just being free of pain, illness, or disease. Ultimately, you want to achieve a dynamic state of wellness.

Look within for guidance

Dispel the myth that says you must look to someone else to tell you what you need for your own well-being. When you go inside to that still space and connect with your higher self, you will always know what is right for you to do, what is best for you to eat or drink, and when your body needs sleep or a vacation. The key is to trust yourself.

Detoxify your system

Detoxifying your body can be an uncomfortable and daunting experience. However, fasting or doing a healthful body cleanse one day a week or even once a month can be beneficial on more than just the physical level. Detoxification can also help you let go of old fears and release negative emotions or pain from your past.

Go beyond the germ theory

Disease is not so much about germs, viruses, and bacteria as it is about what is going on in your body energetically that allows those germs and viruses to establish themselves and expand. The word disease means “out of a state of ease.” Illness serves as an opportunity to ask, “How did I attract this into my life, and how can I get myself out of this state?” Illness is not an indication that someone is a bad person or has done something wrong. Illness is your body’s way of signaling that something is out of balance. The question to ask is, “What can I learn from this?” Take that information and use it to move out of the state of dis-ease.

“You are an eternal being revealing your internal nature here in your body—with your body.”

Michael Beckwith

Summary (continued)

Accept yourself

High self-esteem is a critical aspect of achieving good health. When you accept yourself as you are, you remove a great amount of self-imposed stress.

Practice your final breath

A Himalayan master says all people should mentally practice for their final breath. Ask yourself, “How do I want to breathe my last breath?” Then each time you go into meditation, you are practicing for that final adventure. As you close your eyes to the outside world, you go within to an expanded consciousness that is exactly the practice of your own transition out of this world and into the next. When you become comfortable with that final transition, you are able to more fully embrace the life you are living here and now.

Session 3: Effortless Relationships

This third session of Applying the Law of Attraction focuses on the impact of a breakthrough goal in the dimension of relationships. As we bring our lives into harmony with our true purpose, the waves of change ripple through our connections with others. The Law of Attraction will bring the resources needed to meet the challenges in this dimension of life.

Begin with the people closest to you—family members and friends. Then consider relationships that extend outward to coworkers, neighbors, and people across the world. Applying the Law of Attraction means living in harmony with all.

The recording for this session includes a dialogue in which Jack and Paul explore common issues about the dimension under consideration. This dialogue sets the stage for the panel of Jack, Paul, Lisa, and Michael, who give you their views on the way breakthrough goals have led to transformed relationships.

Using all these ideas as a backdrop, you can now complete the following exercises in this session:

- Define Your Breakthrough Goal
- Foresee Disruptions
- Turn Disruptions Into Enhancements
- Choose Your Actions

These exercises will help you address issues that arise in the relationship dimension of your life as you pursue your breakthrough goal.

Summary

“Whenever I’m in judgment, I’m not allowing things to be the way they are, and I’m also not allowing all the abundance that wants to flow into my life. Any judgment of another ultimately creates a separation.”

Jack Canfield

Achieving Effortless Relationships

Be honest about fearing rejection

Most people say the reason they are unwilling to be honest with someone else is because they do not want to hurt the other person. In reality, according to Byron Katie, author of Loving What Is, people do not tell the truth because they fear the possible rejection, humiliation, or shame they may get from others in response to what they say. Listen to your feelings and recognize your fears, but do not let them stop you.

Focus on what you want

A basic principle of the Law of Attraction is to focus on what you want, not on what you don’t want. Do not focus on not being in a relationship. Instead define what the ideal relationship would look and feel like for you. Focus on the qualities you want to experience with this person.

Grow with it

Trust the universe has brought you into your current relationships with others. You have attracted a particular relationship—even if it is a difficult one—because it offers you an opportunity for growth. Whatever comes out of the relationship will be for your highest good.

Session 4: Effortless Personal Growth

In this fourth session of Applying the Law of Attraction you will focus on the life dimension of personal growth. It is your nature to grow intellectually, emotionally, and spiritually. You will discover how growth shapes who you are and, unlike the things you accumulate in life, the learning and wisdom you accumulate as you grow can never be taken from you.

Personal growth involves risk-taking, stepping out into the unknown, and trusting your higher self will guide you. Inspiring role models can help show you the characteristics that will move you forward and help you grow. Jack, Lisa, Michael, and Paul offer their own inspiring stories to remind you that being a continual learner is part of the process of moving toward your breakthrough goal. They also emphasize that the more you allow the real you to shine in the world, the easier it will be to succeed.

Using these ideas as a backdrop, you can now complete the following exercises in this session:

Achieving Effortless Personal Growth

Claim your personal growth

Personal growth is the intellectual, emotional, and spiritual growth that goes on inside you. It is all of your skills, talents, and abilities; the wisdom you embody; and the self-confidence, self-esteem, self-control, emotional intelligence, and spiritual insights you have developed as a result of your experiences. Through your active participation in the Effortless Success program, you have staked an ironclad claim to your future success.

Move beyond the myths surrounding growth

People hold on to all kinds of myths regarding personal growth. Some people think they do not have time for self-development programs and retreats or feel they cannot afford them. Other people are afraid their personal growth will affect other aspects of their life in a negative way. They feel they may grow away from the people they love or evolve beyond friends who they fear may ridicule them. Some simply believe self-improvement itself is a myth, because the self is already perfect. Remember, it is not necessarily about improving the self but rather acknowledging it is natural to want to grow.

Find a good model for growth

One of the things that can stop you from growing is not having someone in your life that has already achieved what it is you desire. Find a role model. Find someone who is vibrating at a higher level of consciousness or joy about whatever it is you want to bring into your own life.

Have the courage to surrender

When people hear the word surrender—surrender to the higher self, to God, or to a higher power—they may fear they are giving up or losing control. But surrender is the most courageous thing you can do. There is a flow in life; it is like a flowing river. Have the courage to step into the river and enter the flow. When you do not fight the current but instead flow with it, effortless success happens. That is the nature of your breakthrough goal.

Experiment with your life

To quickly step into a pattern of growth, simply take an action or task you do the same way every day and do it differently. This will break the pattern of the trance. No extra time is required, just a little bit of creativity.

Use your hands-busy, mind-free time

When your hands are busy but your mind is free, use the time for personal growth. When you are driving your car, spend the time listening to and learning a foreign language. When you are washing the dishes, listen to a success-building program like Effortless Success. You can make great strides in your personal development using this technique.

“If you were to leave the country with nothing—no suitcase, no money, no possessions, no network of friends—whatever you would have at that point would be all inside of you. That ultimately is the mastery that you have developed and have been able to maintain throughout your life.”

Jack Canfield

Moving Forward

"We naturally will be attracted to that which will unfold us in the way that we want to move—the way that's intended for our highest evolution and our highest achievement of our destiny."

Jack Canfield

Celebrate Your Success!

Congratulations on the progress you have made in this final course of Effortless Success. Remember to listen to your Paraliminal, Question and Answer, and Fast Finish CDs. These unique recordings reinforce key messages and experiences you gained in Course Three.

Take a moment now to savor and celebrate the high points on your journey. These include all the new insights and skills you have activated, integrated, and applied in your daily life.

This journey of personal growth never ends. Right now, you stand on the edge of a miracle—the ongoing experiment called your life. The new results you have experienced so far are just the beginning. There is much more to come.

As you move forward, revisit the audio recordings of Effortless Success again and again. Their continued use will help you take conscious control of the thoughts, desires, and actions necessary for you to create the joyous and abundant life you desire.
